

Pastor's Corner:

“On a cold winter’s night, a gander of geese were grounded by a blinding blizzard. The ground the grounded geese gazed at belonged to a wise farmer with a kind heart. The farmer, sitting by the fire, had finished his evening meal. He heard the cold wind whistling outside while he was safe and warm inside his home. The geese, cold and scared, cried to one another seeking direction. The farmer heard the cries. Being a wise man, he didn’t ignore the cries. He looked; he saw - he took action. Next to the farmhouse was a barn dry and warm. The farmer attempted to lead the geese to the barn. They didn’t follow. The farmer carefully crumbled a path of breadcrumbs to the barn. The geese didn’t follow. Finally, the wise farmer thought of the duck who he fed on the pond behind the barn. The duck was tame and often followed him around the farm. He picked up the duck from the dry warm barn and placed him outside on the cold wet ground. The duck probably would have been happier to stay where it was warm and dry, but the farmer knew best. The duck saw the trail of breadcrumbs and began to waddle along eating as he went. The geese saw the duck and followed him to warmth and safety.” (This story is told by an unknown author)

Aren’t you glad that our Father in Heaven is wise and has a kind heart? He took His Son from the glory and beauty of Heaven and sent Him to earth that we might follow Him into the warmth and safety of our Father’s house. May we be more like Him and never fail to hear those who cry for help who are longing to be rescued from this cold world.

Blessings, Pastor Vernon
